GENERAL SUMMARY:

Under the general supervision of the RN, renders nursing care to residents within an assigned unit of the nursing home. Assists the RN in implementing the resident care plan on a designated unit.

ESSENTIAL JOB FUNCTIONS:

Follows established performance standards and implements facility policies and procedures on the unit assigned. Interprets existing policies and procedures to nursing assistants, restorative nursing assistants, residents, families and physician.

Supervises and evaluates all direct resident care provided within the unit and initiates corrective action as necessary.

Obtains report from nurse he/she is relieving and records sufficient information to implement appropriate follow-up action as necessary in relation to the resident's treatment needs.

Conducts resident rounds to assess the skin condition of each resident and report problems to the Nursing Supervisor or Unit Manager, and takes necessary follow-up action.

Identifies special nursing problems and emergency situations quickly, and initiates immediate "life saving" measures in the absence of a physician.

Participates in facility educational programs, such as orientation, in-service and nursing assistant education programs. Participates in staff meetings.

Instructs nursing assistants in proper, preventive safety measures and use of adaptive equipment to meet the needs of each resident.

Assesses, plans, implements and evaluates the nursing care of assigned residents, with the guidance of the RN.

Assumes responsibility for compliance with federal, state and local regulations within the unit on the assigned shift of duty.

Obtains a nursing history for each resident and records this information as a part of the permanent record.

Administers treatments according to the physician's order and accurately records treatments administered, as well as progress notes. Establishes priorities for intervention and treatment.

Assesses the resident for signs/symptoms indicating desired or undesired effects of treatment. Documents resident care provided and resident's response or lack of response to treatment provided.

Assesses and reports changes in resident's condition to physician, the Unit Manager and responsible party and takes follow-up action as necessary.

Assists in the admission/transfer and discharge of residents including documentation as necessary.

Defines resident needs/problems which are amenable to nursing intervention. Defines specific nursing interventions to achieve goals. Obtains physician's orders and any revisions for all treatments needed.

Provides direct resident care. Establishes goals with patient/family if possible.

Plans for and/or provides information to residents and families relative to their condition, treatment plan and anticipated changes in life style, as well as information for health maintenance.

Assists the physician in diagnostic or therapeutic procedures.

Reports to RN changes in resident condition that require changes in the resident plan of care.

Follows Resident's Rights and all facility safety policies and procedures at all times.

Assures implementation of quality assurance and infection control practices and assists in maintaining a safe environment for residents and staff.
